Old Kingston Family Record In Book Form

Nov. 18, 1939

"Our Ansley Family" Covers the Spread of Old Loyalist Family

An addition to the literature of the Kingston Historical Society has been made in the presentation to it of a copy of "Our Ansley Family," which covers the settlement and later spread of this old Loyalist family with its six sons, all of whom were in the service from 1775 to 1783.

The establishment of the family of Amos Ansley in Kingston, and that of his brothers Ozias and Daniel in New Brunswick, and of two other brothers in Pennsylvania, with the full lines of descent from each of them is given in detail, and covers family records to a comparatively recent date.

A feature of the book, which has received high commendation, is the chapter entitled "The Story of the Loyalists", which covers in an unprejudiced and disinterested manner the conditions existing at the time, and upon which the writer has personally stated his purpose of showing the present generations the story of the "other" side, as such is practically unknown to the young people of today.

The writer, Harold Ansley Davidson, for many years a resident of Jenkintown, Pa., is a great grandson of Amos, grandson of his son Samuel, who was born at Battersea. His paternal grandmother Catherine Middleton was sister to a well known Kingston man, Captain James Middleton, whose sons made the home of writer in Brooklyn their headquarters upon their beginning business in New York. Mr. Davidson was a banker and financial man in New York and elsewhere many years, and is now devoting his full time to genealogical studies. He is a member of Historical and Genealogical Societies and the Toronto chapter of the United Empire Loyalists.

Joe Louis to another fight if only figure out some way of crossing the Atlantic. Mr. Churchill might rather than give the German pugilist the honor for the sake of the psychological effect. What Louis would do again to the world's social theories.

South African Minister of National Defence, Colonel Denys Reitz, who visited the Cape of Good Hope, said that it could stave off a German invasion of 10,000,000 men. And the South African has a reputation for being military, especially when it comes to the use of enormous numbers of op-

It is difficult in Kingston to get a perspective of the events that occurred in Prague in 1939. In perspective if we suppose that the city had been conquered by the Germans. The Canadians had naturally found it difficult to forget their deepest feelings for their own country and their feelings for the Nazis. Within a few months, the students at Queen's University had expressed their feelings, that the German storm troopers reinforced by the British had invaded the University. That nine of the students had been killed in front of one of the gray buildings and executed by firing squad, probably before the eyes of their parents, and that the University had been closed for three years.

Dear A. T. Burling:

Enclosed are

- ① Marriage Certificate of GEORGE FREEDLEAF SPENCER and MARY ANN LOGAN - 1874 - (you may keep)
- ② Deed of this property from STEPHEN JAYNE to JAMES W. SPENCER - 1849 (please return)
- ③ Transcript of deeds of this property 1803-1886 (please return)

Note on Crown Grant - was for a Sergeant Samuel Ansley. What became of him?

I have a copy of a publication of the Royal Soc'y of Canada, 1925, "THE IDENTIFICATION OF THE SITE NEAR PORT DOVER OF THE WINTERING PLACE OF DOLLIER DE GASSON AND BREHANT DE GALINEE 1669-1670" by James H. COYNE

The writer describes the unveiling of a memorial with standard tablet at the site in 1924 and states that the site was donated by D.C. and Bessie ANSLEY. Is there any connection with the Sergeant?

Do you know anything about the 3rd Reg't of Pennsylvania in 1776 - the "Regimentals" were "brown turned up white or white facing"

Day File

Lewis Day, son of Henry <sup>died 1810</sup> (Lewis, Barnabas) Day and Elizabeth Ryder, married Hannah Ansley. <sup>1772-1839</sup>

Bath, Ontario, Jan. 8, 1961

Dear Mr. Ponham:

Best wishes for the New Year! And thanks for the loan of your papers. As you will note, I am enclosing everything except the marriage licence.

Two Ansleys came to this region as Loyalists--Samuel and Amos. Amos is referred to as a "carpenter taken prisoner at Fort St. Vincent's--carried to Virginia--escaped to New York. He eventually settled in Kingston, where his children were baptized at St. George's church. They were Samuel, baptized in 1795; Daniel, in 1793; Elizabeth, in 1799; Amos, in 1801. There were other children in this family, namely Henry Hamilton, Mary, Catharine, and Ann.

Samuel Ansley enlisted in the 2nd Batt., King's Royal Regiment of New York in May, 1780. He served with his battalion at Carleton Island, Oswego and Kingston, in which latter place he received his discharge of 24 June, 1784. During the rest of that summer he was employed as a carpenter in building a sawmill at the mouth of Mill Creek (now Millhaven). He was the man who drew your farm lot in that same summer. As far as is known, he never married. At least, there is no record of a wife or family.

Both Ansleys may have been from the Mohawk Valley, where an Ansley, or Enslon, as it was sometimes spelled. Philip Empey, an early settler in the Cornwall area, married Elizabeth, daughter of Gilbert Ansley and Catharine Allison. Gilbert was an immigrant to New York State in the 1740's, having come from England. Gilbert settled on the estate of Sir William Johnson, and he and his brothers were Tories. (Were these brothers Samuel and Amos?)

I do not think that the Ansleys who donated that land were descendants of either Samuel or Amos, although they may have had the same ancestry. Because of the initial 'O', I think I have another ancestry for your people. The name is very likely OZIAS, a most peculiar one, which may have been handed down the generations. The following items may give the clue:

Henry Buckner, of Crowland, married Joanna~~x~~ Ainsley, dau. of Ozias Ansley, Ensign of the 1st Batt. New Jersey Volunteers of N. B. (New Brunswick?)
They had a son, Ozias Buckner. Upper Canada Land Books.

Thank you for the loan of the papers, which I have copied.

Amos Ainsley

The name is variously spelled Ainsley or Aensley. On the 24th of May, 1793, Mr. Ainsley was refused permission for an Iron Bloomery, minerals being reserved to the use of the Crown (U. C. Land and State Book A, p. 82). His claim to the East 1/2 of lot 24 on the north side of black (sic) River, Township of Maryborough, originally drawn by Corporal Dick, was allowed by the Land Claims Board (D. W. Smith Papers, Vol B 10, p. 272).

In return for a perpetual lease of the King's Mills at Kingston, he offered "to build a Grist Mill, and Saw Mill . . . . Grist Mill with two run of Stones, and furnish all materials for the sum of Six hundred Pounds Halifax Currency." This offer the Executive Council rejected on January 27, 1807 (U. C. Land Book D, pp. 326-7). He fared no better on May 12, 1808, when he again asked for a lease, though not in perpetuity (U. C. Land Book E, p. 75. Other proposals in regard to this public franchise will be found under the name of David Brass

by
Harold Ansley Davidson
1933.

The Loyalist family of Ansley originally settled on the Mohawk River prior to the American Revolution. From this location, four sons settled in Sussex County, N. J. Two of these went to Nova Scotia as Loyalist refugees. The remaining two moved into the Penn lands in Western Pennsylvania. Two younger sons went to Kingston, Ontario, as Loyalists, while the daughters married New York State farmers.

Representatives of this family are found in Canada, New York, Wisconsin, California and Pennsylvania.

Family tradition shows the father of these children to be Gilbert (sometimes called John, or John Gilbert) Ansley, a native of England, who came to America about 1755 to 1760, and located in Eastern New York, near Johnstown, in the present Fulton County.

Gilbert married in England, his wife's name being Allison. Her brother, Robert Allison, was a prominent man in the settlement of the western districts of New Jersey, and became a large landholder and Justice in Sussex County during the period before the War.

Gilbert had ten children, the youngest being born in 1762. It is not known when Gilbert died, but old letters show his wife to have lived until 1816.

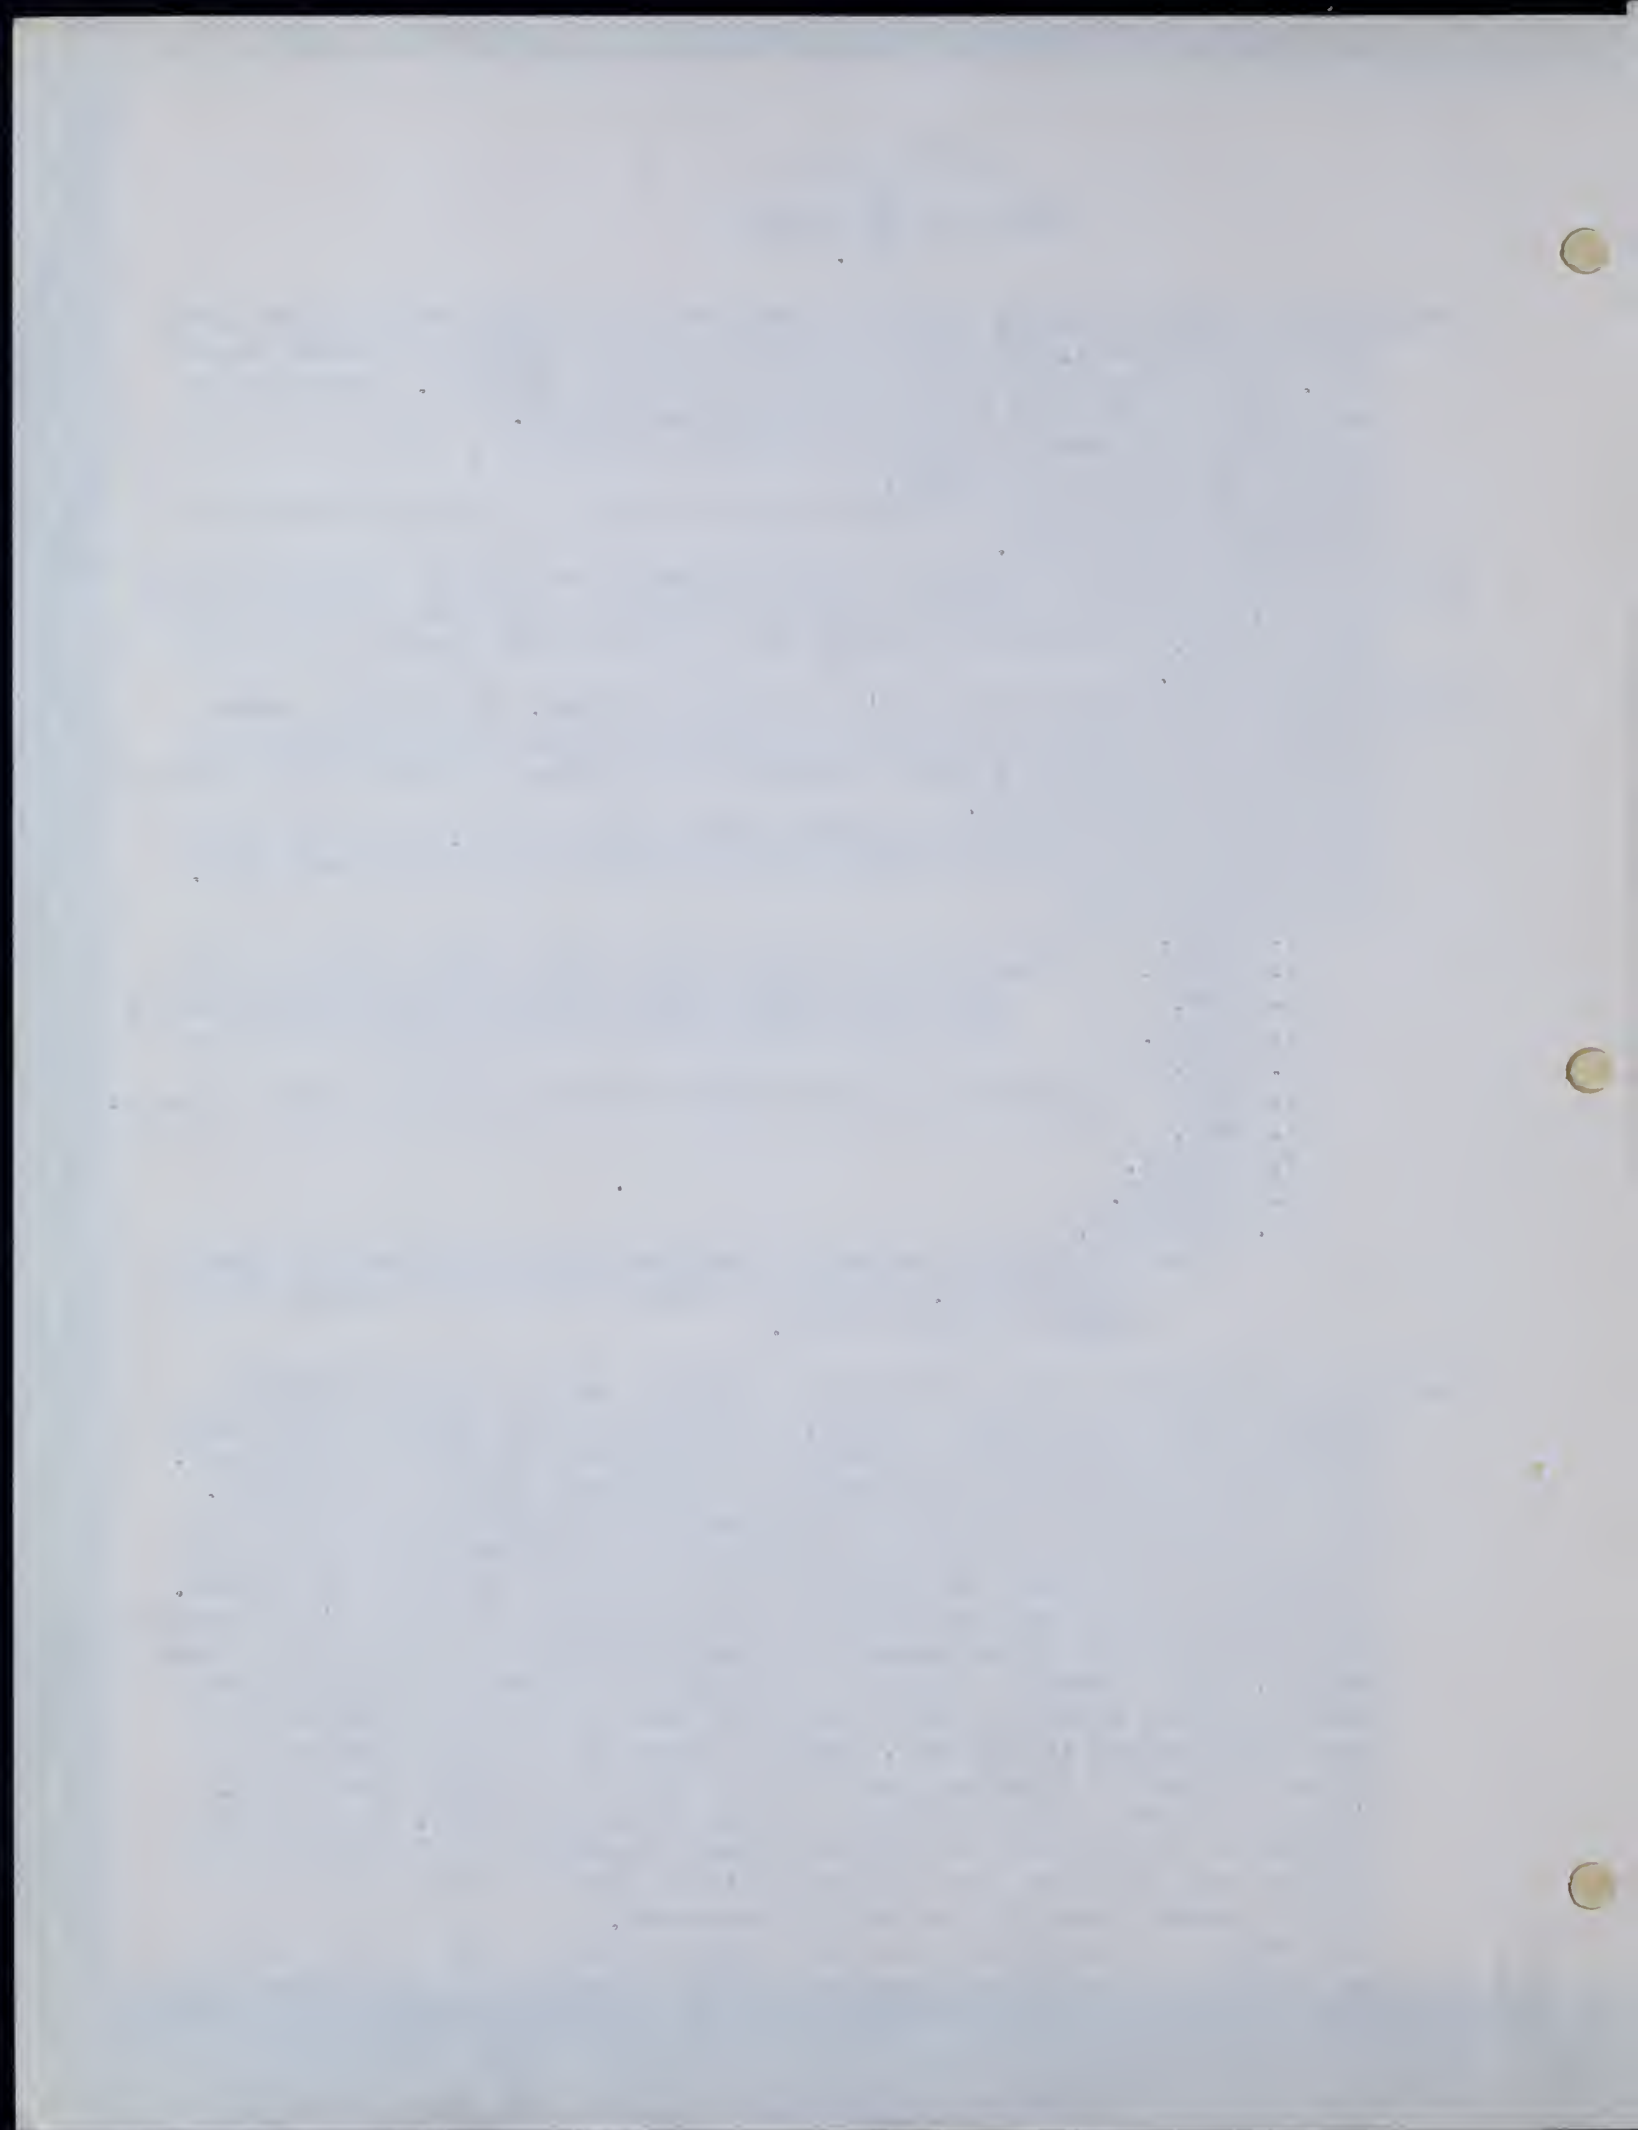

Their children were:

1. Ozias.     )
2. Daniel.    ) These brothers joined their Uncle Robert Allison in New
3. John.       ) Jersey and became small farmers in that frontier state,
4. Thomas.     ) where they remained until the beginning of the War.
5. Amos.       )
6. Samuel     ) Remained in New York State with their mother, later to Canada.
7. Mary.
8. Rebecca.
9. Margaret.
10. Elizabeth.

These daughters remained in New York State and married farmers in Tryon County. Of these, Elizabeth (1753-1808) married Philip Empe (see Empe file).

Amos Ansley (1757-1830), one of the sons of Gilbert Ansley, married Christina McMichael in New York State in 1780. He served with the British Forces under General Hamilton at Fort St. Vincent as a carpenter, where he was captured. He managed to make his way to Canada, and eventually settled at Kingston. The land records of the Counties of Fulton and Montgomery, New York State, show that in 1793 he deeded lands in Kingsborough and Sacandaga Patents to a resident of Johnstown. Presumably this was land once held by his parents. Government records show many activities upon his part, together with increased land holdings which indeed seemed to be characteristic of the times and conditions. Under a British ruling the children of soldiers were entitled to a land grant upon majority, and we find that each of his many children filed their applications in his name. Amos was active in the organization of St. George's Church in Kingston, and its books show the baptisms, marriages, births and deaths of his children, of whom there were eight. With the other pioneers of the district he suffered intense hardships in that new and inclement land, and like them was dependent for several years upon the food supplies administered by the British Government.

Old letters and family records show a fairly complete story of the growth of the family life at Kingston. An interesting narrative is to the effect that while on a hunting trip with his oldest son, Daniel, he discovered a waterfall and a natural dam which indicated a source of great water power. They cut a road through the forest, made a rough dam of logs and brought their families to live at the location. They built a saw mill and a rough house of plank which served the family for many years until a larger one of boards was erected. ~~For~~ For some time after their location, in 1817, in this wilderness the nearest neighbor was four miles away. They called the location Ansley's Mills, and by some mischance did not gain title to the property so that after a period of years when their settlement had grown and become known as Battersea, they left the old house and located in another part of the district.

-At the Battersea settlement many of the children of Amos lived and those of Daniel born, and family tales and traditions refer generally to the life here. Amos died in 1830 and with his son, Daniel, was buried near their home.

-Christina McMichael, the wife of Amos, and the mother of his children died in 1834. While on a visit to their daughter, Anne, wife of Rev. A. F. Atkinson, who was then a Curate at Chrish Church, Montreal, she was suddenly stricken with a contagious disease and lived only one day after arrival. She was buried in the Dorchester and Papineau Avenue Cemetery at Montreal.

Letters from Amos to his brother Ozias refer to the education of his son at the University of Edinburgh, Scotland, and also mention his attendance at the funeral of his mother in 1816.

This branch of the Ansley family had two decided characteristics in feqtue and appearance. The descent from Amos and that of his brothers show a large and generally heavy build, high color, light hair, blue eyes, such pprevailing as the general Ansley type. Christina, his wife, was of a different type and temperament, and has bequeathed to many of her descendants her dark brown or black eyes, auburn hair, quick manner of speech, and her executive ability. In Many of the families of her grandchildren will be found the Ansley blond with blue eyes and light hair and high color, while a brother or sister will show dark brown eyes, auburn or red hair, and quick temper. Christina was the "redheaded Grandmother," which tradition and story have carried to the present generation.

The children were

1. Henry Hamilton.
2. Mary.
3. Catherine.
4. Daniel.
5. Samuel.
6. Elizabeth.
7. Amos, Jr.
8. Anne.

3. Catherine Ansley (1786 -----), married Powell, a member of a well known Loyalist family living on the north shore of Lake Erie near Port Dover and Simcoe. No record obtained of descendants. (The Orders-in-Council, by which land was granted to the children of Loyalists, contain the approval of 200 acres to Catharine Ainsley, daughter of Amos, the wife of Ebin Bass of Loughborough, dated 3 June, 1800. Under Ansley she is referred to as wife of Ebenezer Boss, of Kingston (Woodhouse). From this it is inferred that she and her husband removed to Woodhouse while her application was being processed. As Woodhouse is on the north shore of Lake Erie, it is safe to assume that she married, secondly, a Mr. Powell, as is noted above).

4. Daniel Ansley (1792-1865), married Hannah Burnett (1795-1850) in 1815. As a young man, Daniel and his father, Amos, located a water power while travelling in the woods, and built a saw mill and dam and established their homes there, building two houses. The location became known as Ansley's Mills and was later given its present name, Battersea. Children:

  9. George Day. )
  10. Myrtle Florella Day, married William H. Anglin.

5. Samuel Ansley (1795-1861), married Mary Van Buskirk (1805-1848) in 1825. While no actual evidence is at hand, the family tradition is to the effect that Mary came from New Brunswick, and was a daughter of an officer in the First N. J. Volunteers. The relations between the Ansley and Van Buskirk families have been shown to be close. Samuel was born near Kingston, Ont. His early married life was spent near Hamilton, Ont., where he seems to have been in business and where his children later established their own homes. His wife, Mary, died in 1848, and is buried in St. John's Cemetery at Woodhouse, near Simcoe.
 Samuel later moved to Brooklyn, N. Y., and became active in the organization and life of St. Mary's P. E. Church, being a vestryman for many years. He married while there Sarah Ripley Haskins, a member of an old New England family, and a first cousin of Ralph Waldo Emerson, who was active in religious and charitable work being one of the organizers of the Sisterhood of St. John, an order devoting itself to work among the poor and ill. A memorial window was erected in St. Mary's Church to their memory. Both are buried in Mount Olivet Cemetery near Brooklyn. Children:
